Prayer for the World

Offered by Caedmon Kelley on Sunday, May 5

God, I am troubled about people with physical or mental disorders not getting care, because all people deserve medical aid. I want to ask you to help. I know that, at least for now, there may not be a complete remedy for pain. But God, please help the ill people have high spirits, even when all seems lost.

God, I am also concerned about the many refugees who fled from the Syrian war. I pray for their wellbeing. Above all, however, I pray the fellow men and women in their new country will love the refugees as themselves. I want to ask you, God, to help.

God, there are countless conflicts we are struggling with. Pollution, the sick and sad, simply being kind. It is impossible to touch on them all. But these two I felt personally connected to this week. Would you heal these wounds.

In Jesus' name.
Amen

Prayers for . . .

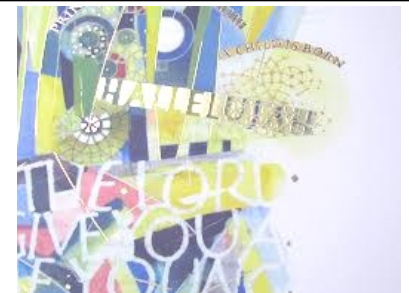

Gerri Carey's mother, Mable Adams Addison, 100, of Eastanollee, Georgia, died on Friday, May 3. Her service was on Monday at Tom's Creek Baptist Church.

Nathan Stone is doing well, enjoying all his usual activities and having no negative side effects as he continues with a maintenance treatment for bladder cancer with day trips only to MD Anderson. The treatment plan consists of 3 treatments at MDA, one per week, with breaks of 3-6 months in between each set of 3. He is grateful for the love and concern of his Lake Shore Family.

Joan Parsons, a beloved charter member of Lake Shore, who moved to Tennessee to be near her children Jack and Cathy Parsons this time last year, was hospitalized last week because of severe breathing problems. Joan is back at her assisted living home now and in hospice care. Her address is in the church directory.

Rachel Held Evans, 37, an influential progressive Christian writer and speaker who challenged American evangelical culture, died on Saturday at a hospital in Nashville. She entered the hospital in mid-April with the flu, and then had a severe allergic reaction to antibiotics. Our prayers are with her husband, Dan, and their two preschoolers.

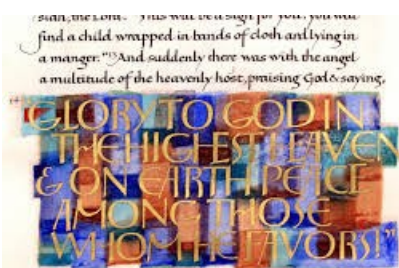

THE SAINT JOHN'S BIBLE

Wednesday, May 22 — 6:15 p.m. Presenter — Beth Farwell, Director of Central Libraries, Special Collections, Baylor

Baylor University is proud to be home to one of a very limited number of St. John's Bible Heritage Editions. According to a Baylor news release, "The first reaction most people have upon viewing the Bible Heritage Edition is a sharp intake of breath or an audible gasp. The play of light on the illuminated pages, the obvious skill of the calligraphy, and the stunning nature of its illustrations all work together to create a visceral response to its inherent beauty."

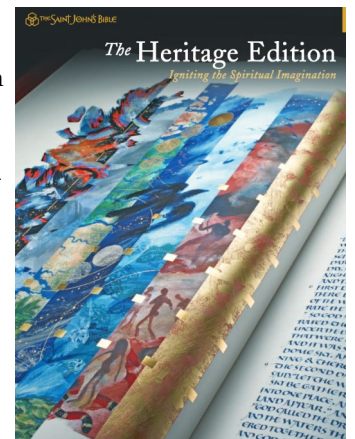

The seven-volume edition includes 160 major illuminations and hundreds of additional illustrations that weave together the Biblical narrative in an awe-inspiring, visually-stunning manner. It is made to the exacting standards by the creator of the original St. John's Bible, illuminator and calligrapher Donald Jackson. The Welsh-based artist and official calligrapher to the Queen, partnered with the monks of St. John's Abbey to create the first handmade, fully-illuminated version of the Bible made on vellum since the creation of the printing press more than 500 years ago. The original St. John's Bible exists only as unbound sheets of vellum; the Baylor set is seven bound volumes measuring 2 feet by 3 feet each. More than eleven years went into the creation of the original.

15 When the angels had left them & gone into heaven, the shepherds said to one another: "Let us go and see this thing of which we have heard."
